A "proffer" is not the same as an "offer". An offer is merely a statement of intent. For example, "I will give you a ticket to Chicago." It is not a promise (although it can take the form of a promise). It can easily be ignored or dropped. A "proffer" is even greater than a promise. A proffer is an act that places the object (the gift) into the control of the intended recipient, such as placing that train ticket into the recipient's pocket or holding out a match to light a candle. The intended recipient is expected (or even forced), then, to make a decision. He must then take the initiative to discard the gift, assuming he does not want it. If he does nothing, he will receive the gift.

When God gave us salvation on the cross, it was a proffer, not an offer. On the cross, God actually took upon Himself the penalty for our sin. 1st Peter 2:24. Therefore, He does not count our sins against us. 2nd Corinthians 5:19. His death was the ratification of His oath to us recorded in Genesis 22:16-18. God's promise (oath) is as good as done because His word has inherently within it the power to create what it says. Genesis 1:3. Yet, God ratified it in substance, anyway, through His own death. That is why "Faith is the substance of things expected, the evidence of things not seen." Hebrews 1:1.

Cherish the gift. Don't throw it away.
